Unit-1 Applied Grammar and Usage

Transformation of Sentences: Simple, Compound, Complex

Simple sentence

A simple sentence is one that has a single independent clause, which sometimes can be accompanied by a participle phrase or an infinitive phrase.

Compound sentence

A compound sentence is a sentence that has two independent clauses combined by a coordinating conjunction.

Complex sentence

A complex sentence is a sentence that has a dependent clause and an independent clause separated by a subordinating conjunction.

Transformation of Simple Sentences to Compound Sentences

1. When converting a simple sentence into a compound sentence or vice versa, the primary consideration is to maintain the original meaning of the sentence without introducing any alterations.
2. Simple sentences may comprise a phrase, often a participle phrase, along with a clause. When you convert such a sentence, you can rephrase the participle phrase into a clause followed by a conjunction and the main clause. This approach enables the connection of two main clauses via a coordinating conjunction or a conjunctive adverb. The only consideration is to conjugate the verb in accordance with the main clause's verb when executing this transformation.

Exercise 1 – Transformation of Simple Sentences into Compound Sentences

Read through the following simple sentences and transform them into compound sentences by using appropriate coordinating conjunctions.

1. Following the trail, we reached our destination.
2. Being sick, I went to the doctor.
3. In spite of the rain, the children went out to play.
4. Having handed over the flowers to my mom, I hugged her.
5. In the event of you not reaching in time, we will postpone the operation.
6. Despite the train being late, Preetha waited for the train.

7. On account of the new rules and regulations, we were asked to work for an extended period.
8. On seeing his mom, the little boy ran to her.
9. I was too tired to do any more work.
10. In order to reduce weight, Anjali has to eat a balanced diet.

Answers for Exercise 1

1. We followed the trail and reached our destination.
2. I was sick, so I went to the doctor.
3. It was raining but the children went out to play.
4. I handed over the flowers to my mom and hugged her.
5. You should reach in time or we will postpone the operation.
6. The train was late yet Preetha waited for the train.
7. There were new rules and regulations, so we were asked to work for an extended period.
8. The little boy saw his mom and at once ran to her.
9. I was very tired, so I could not do any more work.
10. Anjali has to reduce weight, so she has to eat a balanced diet.

Transformation of Simple Sentences to Complex Sentences

1. Similar to transforming simple sentences into compound sentences, converting them into complex sentences also entails turning the phrase into a clause by including a subject and adjusting the verb tense to match that of the main clause.
2. The only difference here is that the phrase has to be converted into a dependent clause accompanied by a subordinating conjunction.
3. An error you might encounter during the transformation process is mistakenly altering the existing independent clause in the provided simple sentence into a dependent clause. Therefore, always ensure that you meticulously convert the phrase (not the existing clause) in the simple sentence into a dependent clause.

Exercise 2 – Transformation of Simple Sentences to Complex Sentences

Go through the following simple sentences and transform them into complex sentences by using suitable subordinating conjunctions.

1. Because of the rain, we decided to stay back home.
2. To finish your project in time, you should start now.
3. Besides being a good doctor, Sheena is a great artist.
4. Despite several obstacles, Aaron made it to the end.
5. On seeing the bride, all her friends were moved to tears.
6. Without accepting your mistakes, you will not be able to move forward in life.

9. Because there was a lack of financial resources, the construction work will not be completed within the said time.
10. Even though she tried multiple times, she could not clear the forty-fifth level.

Transformation of Compound Sentences and Complex Sentences

1. when transforming a compound sentence into a complex sentence, you will have to change one independent clause into a dependent clause and retain the other independent clause. Now, knowing which of the independent clauses has to be made dependent is something that requires careful consideration and execution. Changing the conjunctions is the one thing you will have to do as the rest of the sentence would mostly remain the same.

Exercise 3 – Transformation of Compound Sentences to Complex Sentences

Check out the following compound sentences and convert them into complex sentences by replacing the coordinating conjunction with the most appropriate subordinating conjunction.

1. I finished my homework and went out to play with my friends.

Syntax (Subject – Verb- Concord /Agreement)

Agreement of the verb in the subject

A finite verb must be in the same number and person as its subject. In other words, if the subject is singular the verb will be singular.

Ex – He is playing cricket.

If the subject is plural, the verb will be plural.

Ex – They are playing cricket. (Exception I & You)

1. If the two nouns or subjects are joined by 'and' and they denote the same person or thing, the verb will be singular.

Ex – The great scholar and poet is dead.

2. If the two nouns or subjects are joined by 'And' referring to different persons or things, the verb will be plural.

Ex – The scholar and poet are dead.

3. When two nouns are used and both are preceded by article 'The', the verb will be plural. It shows that the two nouns denote two different persons / things.

Ex- The poet and the scholar are dead.

4. If two nouns or subjects are joined by 'And' and they denote the single object, the verb will be singular.

Ex – Truth and honesty is the best policy.

5. If two or more singular subjects are connected by, or, nor, either – or, neither – nor, the verb will be singular.

Ex- 1. Neither Mohan nor Sohan has broken the chair.

2. Mohan or Sohan has broken the chair.

6. If two subjects differ in number and they are connected by or, nor, and, the verb will be plural according to the plural subject.

Ex - Neither the boy nor the girls have broken the chair.

7. If two or more subjects are in different persons and they are connected by or, nor etc, the verb will be according to its nearest subject.

Ex- 1. Either Mohan or I am at the door.

(The subject will be placed by following 231 rule, 2nd person, 3rd person and 1st person respectively.)

Ex - You, he and I am playing.

8. If the two or more subjects are connected by with, along with, together with, in addition to, the verb will be singular or plural according to the first subject. (or the subject preceding these conjunctions.)

Ex – Mohan with his brothers has come to college.

9. Each, every, everyone, someone, nobody, no one, somebody takes singular verb.

Ex – Each boy in this class is intelligent.

New Word Formation

Word formation is the process of creating new words in a language. There are several techniques used to form new words, each playing a significant role in the evolution and enrichment of vocabulary. Here are the main word formation techniques:

1. Derivation

Derivation involves adding prefixes, suffixes, or infixes to a base word (root) to create a new word.

Prefixes: Added to the beginning of a word (e.g., "unhappy" from "happy").

Suffixes: Added to the end of a word (e.g., "happiness" from "happy").

Infixes: Inserted into the middle of a word (less common in English, more common in other languages).

2. Compounding

Compounding is the process of combining two or more independent words to form a new word.

Endocentric compounds: The meaning is a subtype of the head word (e.g., "toothpaste" is a type of paste).

Exocentric compounds: The meaning is not directly related to the head word (e.g., "scarecrow" is not a type of crow).

3. Conversion (Zero Derivation)

Conversion involves changing the word class (part of speech) of a word without altering its form.

Noun to verb: "to email" (from the noun "email").

Verb to noun: "a run" (from the verb "to run").

4. Blending

Blending combines parts of two words (often the beginning of one word and the end of another) to create a new word.

Examples: "brunch" (breakfast + lunch), "smog" (smoke + fog).

5. Clipping

Clipping shortens a longer word by cutting off one or more parts, typically resulting in a more casual form.

Examples: "phone" (from "telephone"), "ad" (from "advertisement").

6. Acronyms and Initialisms

Acronyms and initialisms are formed from the initial letters of a series of words.

Acronyms: Pronounced as words (e.g., "NASA" for National Aeronautics and Space Administration).

Initialisms: Pronounced as individual letters (e.g., "FBI" for Federal Bureau of Investigation).

7. Back-formation

Back-formation creates a new word by removing an affix from an existing word, usually by eliminating a supposed suffix.

Examples: "edit" (from "editor"), "burgle" (from "burglar").

8. Reduplication

Reduplication repeats all or part of a word to form a new term, often to create an expressive or emphatic effect.

Examples: "fifty-fifty", "tick-tock".

9. Eponyms

Eponyms are words derived from the names of people or places.

Examples: "sandwich" (named after the Earl of Sandwich), "diesel" (named after Rudolf Diesel).

10. Loanwords (Borrowing)

Loanwords are words borrowed from other languages, often with little or no modification.

Examples: "ballet" (from French), "tsunami" (from Japanese).

11. Neologisms

Neologisms are entirely new words, often coined to describe new concepts, inventions, or phenomena.

Examples: "google" (as a verb, meaning to search online), "selfie".

Each of these techniques reflects the dynamic nature of language, enabling it to adapt and expand to meet new communicative needs.
